

Resume Writing

CV vs Resume

- CV:
- • Academic-focused
- • Detailed
- • Used for research, teaching

- Resume:
- • Job-focused
- • 1–2 pages
- • Used in industry

What is a Resume?

A professional summary of your qualifications

Highlights education, experience, and skills

Used to apply for jobs, internships, or academic opportunities

Common Types of Resumes

CHRONOLOGICAL RESUME

FUNCTIONAL RESUME

Chronological Resume

Organizes the resume as per education and work experience

Highlights job seeker's qualification in a few areas

Divided into sections such as Education, Work Experience, Skills, Awards/ Activities

Used in scientific and technical field

Suitable for new graduates

Functional Resume

Focuses on skills and talents

Organized into sections such as Leadership, Design Experience, Communication skills, training abilities

Suitable for more experienced job seekers

WHAT DO YOU NEED TO RESEARCH?

Academia

- Post
- Field
- Department
- Faculty
- University
- Sector

Industry

- Post
- Product/service
- Department
- Organisation
- Sector
- Competitors

Components of a Resume

Header

- Full name
- Phone number
- Professional email address
- LinkedIn or portfolio link

Personal Statement/Profile

Keep	Focus on	Tailor	Use
2–4 lines long	Your professional strengths, not personal traits	For the specific job you are applying for.	Strong action-oriented words, such as, skilled, experienced, dedicated, innovative, results-driven, committed.

Education Section

Degree and major

Institution name

Graduation year or expected graduation

CGPA or academic achievements (optional)

Work Experience

- Related Work Experience: relevant to the job applied for
- Other Work Experience: part-time or unrelated jobs
- Include job title, organization, and responsibilities

Skills Section

Technical skills

Soft skills

Language or computer skills

Align skills with job requirements

Awards and Activities

Academic or professional awards

Extracurricular activities

Volunteering or leadership roles

Demonstrates initiative and teamwork

Reference Line

References available upon request

Professional references will be provided if required

References can be furnished at a later stage of the selection process

References

- Referee's full name
- Designation and organization
- Professional relationship to the candidate
- Contact information (email and phone)

COMMON MISTAKES….

- Spelling errors
- Too much, too little information
- Irrelevant details (including age)
- No personality
- Poor presentation
- Dull vocabulary
- Too general.